

Abstract

Selection of a jump menu option on a wireless communication device presents the user with a dynamically defined, context sensitive menu that provides access to each previously visited card in the current navigation session. Access is additionally provided to cards containing help menus, personalized menus, and user tips. Help and tips menus can be context sensitive. The jump menu may be accessed by selecting a menu choice, icon, or soft-key presented on the display of the wireless device.